The Company seized the development opportunity of the power lithium battery industry and accelerated the upstream industrial layout of power lithium battery. In the third quarter of 2022, Jiangxi Yichun lithium mine project progressed smoothly; the Company's new additional production line for power lithium batteries entered mass production, and the scale of production capacity continued to increase while production costs continued to decrease. At the same time, the Company continued to optimize the customer structure and further developed the energy storage market business. Company's shipment scale grew rapidly, and its operating performance showed significant growth.
